Leaders of all parties in England denounce France, and it is probable that President Hoover's opinion of the French government, which he will not express, would make violent reading.

But the French know what they want, and usually get it. In this case they represent the "immovable obstacle" and the not very "irresistible force." America, England, Germany, etc., will probably accept the French viewpoint because they can't do anything else.

Some believe the desperate "plight" of Germany to be partly imaginary, arranged to produce financial results.

But the French don't think so.

One thing that could happen, with a bad collapse in Germany, would be the rise to power of the so-called "Reds," which would mean chaos. Or Hitler, the imitation Mussolini, might take some kind of gesture aimed at France.

France believes in being ready, and, yesterday afternoon Prime Minister Laval lunched at the Ministry of War, with Petain and Lyautey, the two leading French marshals. Paris newspapers guess that the prime minister and the marshals discussed arrangements for taking care of anything that might happen on the Germany border.

The long line of forts, recently erected by France along that border, plus the great French army, plus the French air fleet, most powerful on earth and the fleet of French submarines, could take care of anything that might happen quite easily.

"He was a very decent respectable man," his neighbors said of John Tabek who sat last Sunday in New York's fifth ave. Presbyterian church, listening to the Rev. Dr. Spence Tabek was out of work, out of money, worst of all, out of courage. He would not ask his friends and relatives to assist him further.

So he listened attentively to the sermon, wrote on piece of paper: "I am going to meet my Creator," swallowed poison, and died.

That is the thing you should not do in a Fifth ave. church. Fortunately, the 400 worshippers knew nothing about it.

If a million, or 10 million, imitated Tabek, that would attract attention. But an occasional individual going to meet his Creator, makes little difference.

Did Tabek, on the other side of the poison bottle, have an opportunity to tell anybody in authority how this world had treated him? or did he perhaps find that nobody cared, there or here?

Prof. Frost, director of the Yerkes observatory, finds indications that there exists a "mind" in the universe. He is not like the French scientist, who replied to Napoleon's question concerning God: "I have no need of that hypothesis."

If a cockroach in a skyscraper could talk, and say: "I believe there is somebody running this skyscraper," you would be amused.

Somebody, somewhere in creation,

Bank Developments

(By Associated Press)

Germany has declared what amounts to a general moratorium of banking operations, closing all banks except the Reichsbank until Thursday and perhaps longer. It was a precautionary measure, a temporary effort to tide the institutions over until help comes from abroad.

Plan Extensions

The World Bank is willing to renew a $100,000,000 credit due on Thursday and it is understood the Bank of France and the Federal Reserve bank of New York which participated in the credit also will grant an extension of their part of the total. The Bank of England has not yet ruled.

Reaction outside of Germany to the collapse of the Darmstadt and National Bank has caused the temporary closing of all the banks in Hungary and suspension of the Mercur bank at Vienna, a subsidiary of the Darmstadter. At Jassy, Rumania, the Dacia bank has closed with a $1,000,000 deficit.

Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, is on the way to Paris for conferences before he goes to Berlin, and Secretary of State Stimson also is headed for Paris from Rome. Secretary Mellon remains on holiday at Cap Ferat, taking no part in the developments.

Suspend Payments

The International Bank and the Bank of Libau at Riga, Latvia, suspended payments today. The Latvian cabinet decided to guarantee deposits in Latvian currency, but asserted it could not extend any assistance to depositors whose accounts are in foreign currency.

An announcement from Brussels said that Luxembourg banks decided to suspend marks on the exchange markets because of the number of Germans crossing the frontier to purchase foreign currency.

Hotelkeepers in Ostend were refusing marks from German tourists. Putting them in an awkward position inasmuch as they had no means of returning to their country. The same situation prevailed at Copenhagen and Basel.

BERLIN, July 14.—The government moved today to stem the tide of financial disaster by placing in effect what amounts to a general moratorium on banking operations. In accordance with a decree by President Von Hindenburg, all banks throughout the Reich, with

Change Made In Prison;
Attorney General Will Designate Place

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Albert B. Fall's jail sentence of a year was changed today to a year and a day to enable him to serve his time in a western prison.

The attorney general is expected immediately to designate the prison where the former secretary of the interior will serve.

The clerk of the District of Columbia supreme court will then send a warrant of commitment to the United States marshal in New Mexico or Texas, and he will take Fall to prison.

The department of justice has asked the warden of the New Mexico penitentiary if Fall could serve his time there and the warden replied that he could.

Frank Hogan, Fall's attorney, today moved before Justice Bailey in the District of Columbia supreme court, that the sentence of a year in the District of Columbia jail be amended to a year and a day in a penitentiary.

Probe Her Death

The mysterious death of Mrs. Marion Day Berrien, former Polities beauty and widow of a U. S. naval officer, whose body was found in the fire-swept ruins of her Forest Hills, L. I., home, has authorities conducting a thorough investigation of how she met her fate. Police are checking the identity of several men who are believed to have called on Mrs. Berrien shortly before the fire, which partly destroyed her fashionably located home, started.

List Announced by President W. H. Vodrey at Special Meet

LISBON, July 14.—At a special meeting of the Columbiana County Bar association in common pleas court No. 1 Monday afternoon, President William H. Vodrey announced the personnel of association committees for the year. Eight committees were designated.

On account of the election of Atty. William H. Moore as vice president of the group, Atty. W. H. Hammond of Columbiana resigned as a member of the illegal practice committee to take the office of secretary, succeeding Mr. Moore.

Memorial Planned
The death of Atty. Walter B. Hill of East Liverpool, a brother of Atty. Walter B. Hill, was announced, and it was determined to have a memorial meeting of the association in the municipal court room at East Liverpool at 1 p. m. Wednesday.

Att. W. O. Wallace of Columbiana has succeeded Mr. Hammond as a member of the illegal practice committee.

The association has accepted the

Hungarian Fliers
Postpone Takeoff

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., July 14.—Prospects of bad weather prompted Alexander Magyar and George Endres, Hungarian fliers, to postpone their take-off for Budapest today. They said they would put in the day loading 630 gallons of gasoline into their plane, "Justice to Hungary," and would take off as soon as the weather cleared.

The gasoline which they have had stored here since last autumn, they estimate, is enough for 28 hours flying although they expect to reach Budapest or some other point in Hungary in 26 hours or less.

Fix Valuation Of
Telephone Company

COLUMBUS, O., July 14.—The state utilities commission today fixed a final valuation for rate making purposes of $1,244,476.56 on the properties of the Warren Telephone company, of Warren.

The final valuation was the same as the tentative figures fixed several months ago. The commission overruled protests of both the City of Warren and of the telephone company to the tentative valuation.

The valuation is as of Dec. 1, 1930. Unless an appeal to the state supreme court is taken figures will be used immediately as a basis for fixing equitable rates for the Warren territory.

To Be Speakers

LISBON, July 14.—Attorney General Gilbert Bettman will discuss the new jury code in an address at Lake Placid Saturday afternoon, Aug. 1, the event being the second annual Columbiana county jurors' outing.

Judge Ruhl to Attend

Judge James B. Ruhl, of the Cuyahoga county common pleas court, a native of Lisbon, and past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Ohio, F. & A. M., will also attend this gathering.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown will discuss the state election laws, and State Senator Earl Lewis of St. Clairsville will speak on the work of the last legislature.

Martin L. Davey of Kent will talk briefly on "The Tree."

The Columbiana County Bar association, through its president William H. Vodrey, Monday afternoon accepted an invitation to attend the jurors outing in a body, with Judges L. T. Farr of the appellate court; Judge W. F. Lones of common pleas court and Judge Lodge Riddle of probate court attending with this body.

Dinner for Guests

Guest speakers and judicial visitors will be entertained at dinner by the management of Lake Placid. The affair is being handled by Assignment Commissioner James G. Stevenson.

Plan George M'Peck
Funeral Wednesday

HOMEWORTH, July 14.—Funeral service for George O. McPeck, 46, who died Sunday morning in the Alliance City hospital of gun shot wounds received in a fight with chicken thieves last Thursday night at the George Wallace farm near Yeagles corners, will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Presbyterian church. Rev. S. W. Seaman, the pastor, will officiate.

There will be a short service at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. McPeck, in Homeworth, at 1 o'clock. Interment will be in the Salem Evangelical church cemetery, near Freesburg.

Friends may call from 7 until 9 tonight at the home of his parents.

Mr. McPeck, who had been an inspector at the Transue and Williams Steel Corporation plant, Alliance, for nine years, had been assisting at the Wallace farm for two weeks. He had lived in Homeworth and vicinity for 24 years. He was a member of the Homeworth Presbyterian church and the Fairmount grange.

Surviving are his parents; four sisters, Mrs. May Dennis of Cleveland; Miss Doris McPeck, Alliance; Mrs. Orpha Walters, Canton; Miss Mary McPeck, Homeworth; six brothers, Harry and Charles of Canton; Burton of Akron and Vernon, Raymond and Arthur of Homeworth.

Launch Drive To Eliminate Weeds

A campaign for elimination of weeds on Salem properties was announced today by Mayor J. M. Davidson and Service Director Clyde R. Reich.

Complaints received from property-owners in residential districts and a request filed by Frank Klopfer, the city's sanitary officer, prompted the campaign.

Owners are asked to cut down or completely eliminate, by tearing out by roots, all weeds in vacant lots. If elimination of the plants is neglected by residents, work will be done by service department workers and costs filed against owners of properties, Klopfer stated.

Contests Planned
At Kiwanis Picnic

Athletic contests, a softball game, boating, bathing and other events will constitute the program as Kiwanians, their wives and friends gather at the Salem Country club in their annual picnic Wednesday afternoon and evening.

About 75 persons are expected to attend the outing. A basket dinner will be served following afternoon events. Horseshoe pitching will be a feature following the dinner.

E. C. Green is chairman of the general committee in charge of the outing.

SWALLOWS
TEXAN DIES

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Private Olaf Nelson of Fort Bliss, Texas, died at Walter Reed hospital early today after five unsuccessful attempts to extract from his esophagus artificial teeth he swallowed last Saturday.

The 30-year old soldier, who was rushed across country in an army ambulance plane in a race against death, died at 7 o'clock from suffocation. He had rallied from the fifth probing for the dental bridge which caught in his throat while eating breakfast at the Texas army post at 4 a. m. and was believed better than at any time since he arrived here late yesterday.

Doctors feared septic pneumonia or a general infection but neither developed. Surgeon Gen. Patterson of the Army and Dr. James F. Mitchell, Washington surgeon, had decided the patient could stand no further probing for the teeth until he had regained strength.

Nelson was completely exhausted yesterday after Major Roy Brown and other army surgeons tried for two hours to remove the obstruction.

LISBON, July 14.—A decree by agreement has been entered by Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court in the injunction action recently filed by the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad Co. against The Kulkha Iron & Metal Co. of Alliance and Briggs & Turivas Inc. of Blue Island, Ill.

Injunction Perpetual

The decree, incorporated in a journal entry approved by Boone & Campbell for the railroad company and Andrews and Moreland for the defendant, provides that a perpetual injunction shall be in effect against the defendants from removing any part of the Salem Railroad Co., extending from Salem to Washingtonville, except rolling stock.

It has been pointed out that because of this ruling, the road has been saved to Salem as another rail the short line would still maintain outlet, whereas at Washingtonville its connection with the Erie railroad, as did the Youngstown & Ohio River Railroad Co., before the line was sold at receivers sale for $125,000.

Will Return Machinery

In dismantling the road, employees of Briggs and Turivas removed a rotary converter belonging to the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad company, at the Salem station. An action was filed by the railroad for $1,000 damages and alimony for the restraining order, which becomes perpetual.

According to the agreement, Briggs and Turivas will return the converter and the railroad will drop its damage action.

Modern Dress Taboo
At Golf Club Dance

Modern styles of dress will be taboo at a "depression" dance which will be held Saturday night at the Salem Golf club.

Sponsored by a group of the city's younger folk, the dance will feature Ted Rosenberg's recording orchestra. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m. and continue until 2 a. m.

Only old clothes—none modeled after the year 1929—will be worn by those attending the affair, sponsors said today.

Headley Released
Under $1,000 Bond

LISBON, July 14.—D. H. Headley, Madison township farmer, against whom a charge of shooting with intent to kill was filed by L. D. Lane of East Liverpool before Justice of the Peace C. E. Albright at Lisbon, has been released from the county jail on his own recognizance by Judge W. F. Lones.

The bond in the lower court was set at $1,500. This case will be investigated by the grand jury next September.

Ohio Contractors Advised State
Department Will Set Scale
On Road Projects

COLUMBUS, O., July 14.—State Highway Director O. W. Merrell today advised contractors on state highway projects that he will fix the minimum wage scale to be paid laborers in each contract after July 22, when the Roberts House bill giving that authority is effective.

Merrell said the department had attempted to have contractors pay a standard living wage for work but had no legal means of enforcing the proposals. In many cases "wages have been so low as to shock the conscience," Merrell said.

The highway director said Governor White is interested in maintaining a fair wage schedule and to this end a conference with contractors will be held tomorrow afternoon at which the highway directors of Ohio will discuss the situation.

District Deputies
Named by K.C. Chief

ALLIANCE, O., July 14.—Twenty-three district deputies of the Ohio Knights of Columbus have been named to serve during the coming year by George O'Brien, Alliance, new state deputy.

Among those named are: Joy Hurd of Cleveland; Peter J. Streb of Canton; Frank E. O'Connell of Toledo; Frank McGrath of Painesville; Frank Waldek of Warren; James Hyland of Youngstown; Frank McCarthy of Akron; James McCormick of Massillon; Frank R. O'Hanlon of East Liverpool; T. Attempting to Save 2
Girls In Lake

(By Associated Press)

ERIE, Pa., July 14.—Plunging into Lake Erie in an effort to rescue two girls, Harry J. Marks, 35, president of the Federal Steel company at Detroit, drowned last night. One of the girls also lost her life; the other was rescued.

Marks, his daughter Babbie, three years old, and his two nieces, Phyllis Klingensmith, 17, and her sister Jackie, 10, were in a rowboat at North East. Jackie leaped into the water to swim. The water was over her head, and Phyllis, realizing the little girl was in trouble, plunged in after her. Then Marks jumped into the water.

Witnesses said Phyllis was clinging to Marks when they disappeared. A swimmer rescued Jackie. Bathers pulled the rowboat and the Marks family came here for a vacation a week ago.

Accused of Robbery

TOLEDO, O., July 14.—William Knight, arrested in Detroit and returned here, ended a six-year search for a post office robber who burglarized a sub station here in 1925. Knight escaped from Mansfield reformatory and the post office robbery occurred a short time later. He is charged with the robbery.

ALLIANCE, July 14.—Two men were dead today following an explosion, which caused extensive damage to the meter room of the Alliance Clay Products company, South Mahoning ave., late Monday.

Elmer Klotz, 23, assistant electrician, died at midnight from burns sustained in the blast while James Newell, 41, chief electrician, succumbed to burns and injuries at 10:30 a. m. today.

Cause Undetermined

The cause of the explosion, which occurred just as Klotz and Newell entered the meter room to obtain some equipment for work at another section of the plant, has not been determined. Coroner T. C. McQuate of Canton is conducting an investigation.

Klotz entered the meter room while Newell remained at the door. The blast suddenly enveloped each man in flames, hurled the door from its hinges and reverberated throughout the entire district. Fellow workmen, hearing the explosion, rushed to the meter room and rushed medical aid for the two burned men.

The assistant electrician was burned over the entire body and died soon after entering Alliance City hospital. Newell was burned severely on the face, arms and legs and was also injured from the force of the explosion.

Building Escapes

The building in which the meter room was located, constructed of brick and concrete, was now damaged. Estimates of damage to machinery in the room were not made by company officials.

Klotz lived west of Alliance on the Harrisburg-Canton rd and is survived by his widow and two children. Newell, survived by a widow and one child, was born in Atwater and had been in this vicinity his entire life. He resided at 2601 South Linden ave.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Session Is Planned
By Potato Growers

A meeting of potato growers will be held on the J. C. Potoff farm, five miles south of Salem at 1:30 p. m., Thursday, July 23. Thirty-seven different sources of seed planted in test plots will be inspected and potato diseases will be studied.

A. B. Tussing, potato specialist, will discuss some of the factors in securing good seed.

A large number of Columbiana county growers are expected to attend the meeting.

Bethany President
Is Church Speaker

Dr. Cloyd Goodnight, president of Bethany college, Bethany, W. Va., will be the main speaker at the annual meeting of the Disciples of Christ of Columbiana county, at the Lisbon fairground next Sunday.

A picnic dinner at 1 o'clock will be followed by a communion service and sermon at 2:30. There will be a resper service and sermon at 5:30. Other churches of Lisbon will attend the evening service. The music will be under the direction of J. William Wilson of Salem.

Rushing Home

TULSA, OKLA., July 14.—Breakfast in Santa Monica and dinner in Claremore, rushing home to help welcome Post and Gatty who are going to visit our metropolis today.

I thought if they could fly clear around the world and come to Claremore I ought to make this hop. Besides I am just anxious to see those guys.

Flew Western Air to Amarillo, Tex. Now I am flying 9,000 feet at 170 an hour in one of these fast low wing Lockheed's belonging to the Bowen line.

It's my first trip in one where they bundle the wheels up inside the wings. They say they sometimes forget to put 'em down. Believe me, Pilot Lee will be reminded of it when we start to land.

The wheels are under the wings and the passenger can't see if they are down. I am going to do a little wing walking and go out and see for myself. Yours,

A CRITICAL TIME

The world is working under the most severe pressure it has felt since the critical days of the World War. President Hoover's 11th hour moratorium, the financial crisis in Germany, the smoldering French desire for revenge against its former would-be oppressor, the double threat of Communism and Hitlerism in Germany, and the tottering structure of international trade are factors in a momentous situation from which almost anything may result.

Americans, farther removed from the center of intense pressure than any European people, are asking what will happen. They have a deep dread of revolution and war, though realizing that the United States could not be involved in another European brawl. The real source of consternation on this side of the Atlantic is the possibility that the depression may be prolonged indefinitely by unsettled conditions. Americans sense the intricately balanced relationship of their nation with all of Europe, whether they admit it openly or not.

Until there is no further justification for hope, the sensible attitude will be one of confidence that Europe has the capacity to solve its problems in a manner that will bring the best order possible out of chaos. This government has done the most that lies in its power. President Hoover has suggested a moratorium which, though done at the 11th hour, was America's only chance to give assistance. Private banking interests may do more, in the way of extending credits to Germany, but the government's services can go on no farther.

There are times when the only choice of action is to sit tight and hope for the best. The world is in that position now—the world literally, because the events of the next few days on the continent of Europe will be felt repercussively wherever goods are imported and exported. That is practically everywhere.

A few men hold the responsibility, as always is true in a crisis. May they be given the strength, honesty and clear vision to act in such a manner that 50 years hence their names will be spoken in reverence for their service in a critical time.

THE POSTMAN'S WHISTLE

The postoffice department, always somewhat sensitive on the subject of its annual deficit, has something constructive to offer again. The last time it was an increase in the price of stamps for one ounce and less of first class mail—and in no time at all everyone who had a voice or a pen had landed on the department heavily. Nothing more has been heard on that idea.

This time it is an increase in business that the department suggests. Certainly no one can object to that.

A plan of education has been mapped out which, it is hoped, will cause more people to use fourth-class mail privileges—in other words, an increase in that branch of the business would reduce, if not actually wipe out the parcel post handling deficit, an end eminently attractive to harassed postal officials.

Rural carriers will become salesmen for the parcel post service. Postmasters will use their influence to convince people in their territory that they are missing something by not "sending it through the mail." Classes in civics in high schools and colleges are to be instructed in the proper ways to wrap, pack and address packages for fourth class mailing, because the less the trouble of handling the greater the profit from handling.

It is noted that among the points in the program is one advising postmasters to use the radio to increase parcel post business. It is assumed this means the free use, since the department apparently does not intend to pay for its other salesmanship pressure outlets. All together the idea of making the postman's whistle mean more to the public is an idea that deserves support.

What Others Say

EASY ON THE EYES

North America's position in the temperate zone presupposes a temperate climate with a moderate amount of sunlight. Yet the optimists of the nation believe that we have enough sunlight to warrant the use of blue and green sidewalks and buildings to temper the glare and benefit the eyes.

In tropic countries where the sun beats down unmercifully for days at a time the natives have instinctively protected their eyesight by tinting the outside of stone or plaster houses in delicate colors. But in the tropics there is also an abundance of natural verdure to provide relief.

Any one who has lived in Detroit long enough to see the tree-lined streets of 20 years ago give way to stretches of unshaded pavement and sidewalk know that here we have comparatively little green within the city itself. Painted wooden houses gray stone and the mellow tones of old brick made the residential districts more restful to the eye. But there are plenty of spots in town where whiteness dazzles.

To be sure we are not accustomed to having baby-blue sidewalks and apple-green buildings about us. At first thought the idea of them seems ridiculous. But any one who has ever walked in the blazing sunlight toward a white building surrounded by a wide cement plaza should welcome anything to mitigate the blinding effect. We should not need science to tell us that blue and green are gentle colors since nature has already given us the cue in the verdant hut of trees, grass and plants beneath a cerulean sky.—Detroit Free Press.

AT SEA, July 14—We were awakened this morning by the knock of a courier bringing a spray of bright spring flowers from Chief Purser Villar. A sun in magnificence was splashing a calm sea with dancing light. The ship moves steadily with a rhythmic sway. I'm glad I came—tra, la.

From the viewpoint of curiosity, the most interesting passenger aboard, it would seem, is Gloria Swanson. She gives the celebrity spark to a list composed chiefly of Mr. and Mrs. Kahns, Mr. and Mrs. O'Hanrhan, the Comte B. d'Escazac and valet and the usual ship nomenclature.

Edna Ferber, the novelist, is also listed. We happened to be fellow voyagers on the same ship last summer. I hope there will be no talk. Skimming through the "liste des passagers" I also note Miss Anne Morgan, Helena Rubinstein and, very appropriately, Mr. Steurgeon J. Fysche.

I asked Tatiboulet, the steward, for suggestions as to breakfast. He indulged a typical Gallic shrug and said Americans usually desired the same fare—fruit, boiled eggs, toast and coffee. He ventured a bowl of steaming onion soup and I somehow sank back on the pillow.

Of all tradesmen catering to ocean voyagers I believe the florist is farthest out in front. Corsages for each day of the trip may be sent to Miami so prepared that put on as they are fragrantly fresh. Orchids are incased in glassing tubes and the last day bouquet is as fresh as the first.

I am told that one feminine fare received nine corsages for each day—a total at a conservative estimate of $300. All of which assailed me with the thought of how many hungry that would feed for the trip. O, yes, for invalid passengers florists have diverting vases of oddly colored fish.

In a swing around the promenade today it seemed the most popular book among passengers was "Stalin," by Isaac Don Levine. At least I counted five copies and Edna Ferber would have been pleased at this late day, to know they are still reading "Cimarron." I saw three copies.

A wave of economy has obviously swamped the French boats. At lunch I noticed the customary free bottles of wine—vin blanc et rouge—were missing from the tables.

Our neighbors at the adjoining table in the dining room are an aristocratic looking family of four, decidedly British. There is the silver-haired mother, an attractive daughter of say 18, a son thoroughly devoted to fondling a thin sprout of a moustache and a little boy in Eton collar. They had no cocktails, table wines or cordials but at the finish of the meal all, save the tad, puffed their cigarettes.

Miniature golf has naturally struck the liners. The dance floor of a large salon is carpeted with a stubby green carpet and there are eight holes to be made through rather difficult diguises—imitation logs, winding runways and such. After dinner men and women in

Tumor Often Very Simple

"Tumor" is the word commonly used in describing a swelling of the tissues. As a matter of fact, it is derived from the Greek word meaning swelling.

Frequently the name tumor is thought to refer to the swelling due to cancer. It is for this reason that many a person becomes unduly alarmed when told by the physician that he has a tumor.

One of the most simple types of tumor that I can tell you about is known as a "sebaceous cyst." These cysts, or tumors, occur either singly or in groups. They vary in size from a tiny swelling to a sac two inches or more in diameter.

Sebaceous cysts are most commonly seen in the scalp. They also occur behind the ear, in the eyebrow or wherever hair is found. Though found in young adults, they are most common in middle age.

The condition is caused by a blocking up of the duct of a sebaceous gland, a gland of the skin. The material manufactured by the gland gradually accumulates within its envelope and produces the tumor.

The tumor grows rather rapidly, but sometimes has long dormant periods when it does not seem to grow at all. One of these cysts, or tumors, may attain a very large size if left alone.

It may become inflamed and rupture, discharging the contents of the sac. This gives but temporary relief, because the sac will fill again in a short time.

There is only one thing to do for this condition. The cyst and its contents must be removed. In addition to removing the mass, this procedure guards against its recurrence.

The operation is very simple and can be done in the doctor's office. There is no pain attached to it, as it is usually performed under local anesthesia.

I advise having such tumors removed. A cleanly done little operation amounts to nothing. If the swelling is left alone and the sac permitted to rupture, in addition to its becoming inflamed, it may become infected. Once infected, it may cause great misery and discomfort.

The planetary configurations welding major influence on this day make for disturbance, disruption and in certain alliances definite devastation. It will probably be a day of great excitement and a day of great change and change and disturbance. Out of this welter of turmoil with prudence, sagacity and deliberation in managing opposition and hostility some advantages, progress and preferments may accrue. Much depends upon personal initiative, which will be found under high stimulus. A year of crossroads is seen. A child born on this day may be extremely active and energetic, but restless, changeable and at times depressed. It should make fair success in employment.

SECRET PLACES

Synopsis of Preceding Installments:

Feodor Staire, 36 years old, attached to the British Embassy in Paris, was bored by the modern, hard-boiled young girl until he met Toni Wareham, daughter of Lady Alice Wareham. They were to marry in October and the Warehams had gone to Le Touquet for the summer. Staire's old friend, Ronald Hallett had married Toni's beautiful sister Greta about a year earlier. His newspaper work demanded long hours and Greta was much in the company of the Comte Henry D'Arblaye, a wealthy South American who claimed to be a Frenchman. He gave her a costly emerald and Staire saw her entering a gambling club with D'Arblaye. But he did not know she lost 80,000 francs, which D'Arblaye paid. Greta left Le Touquet hurriedly one day, saying she was going to see her Paris dentist. Feodor expected that day, wired that work kept him in the city and Toni, very much in love, decided to see him in Paris. She found him at dinner with Greta, and would not accept his truthful explanation that Ronald being busy, Greta had invited him to dinner. The next day Toni phoned, asking forgiveness. Feodor went to Le Touquet a few days later and found Toni worried by Greta's flirtation with D'Arblaye, who was a member of another house party there.

INSTALLMENT XIII
"Feodor," Toni said "do you really honestly think I know so little of the world that I believe those two are just friends? Why, you know quite well that no man could be a friend of Greta's. She's not the type. A man doesn't want friendship with anyone so exquisitely lovely as Greta is, or as cruel as she is either. It isn't friendship D'Arblaye feels. You know that. Don't pretend to me I may be young, but I do know something of life."

"Yes," he nodded and frowned.
"Yes," he said. "I know, but it's not for me to throw stones Toni dear. Life taught me this at least. He that is without sin among you." The change in his voice made her look up. At his tone and the sudden sternness she saw about his mouth and eyes Toni slipped her hand within his arm and drew him away towards a little sheltered lawn, where there were seats in the shade of a big chestnut-tree.

"Feodor," she said, "let's sit here for a little. There is plenty of time before lunch. What do you mean exactly by that? Were you trying to tell me something?"

"Yes, and no," he said. "I don't believe in telling. Toni, I think you are wise enough to agree with me; but I do believe that what you have said to me just now makes me realize that after all I've no right to complain of Greta's behavior, or her flirtations. My own past isn't as clean as all that. I wish it were."

His voice thickened a little, and Toni put out her hand and laid it over his.
"I'm with you," she said. "No tellings. My dear, I know. After all, as I said to you just now, I know something of the world. I don't expect to be the first woman you've ever made love to, or anything of that kind. You're—how old are you, Feodor? Thirty-six? Well, as if you could have lived to be thirty-six without having cared for—well—more than one person!"
She looked up at him and her eyes were very soft.
"All I do want to be sure of is, that afterwards, when we are married, it will be me and me only, that you won't do what so many husbands that we both know do, just be perfectly charming and attractive to me at home, but not really belong; it's such humiliation to a wife. I—yes, I love you Feodor. I've had affairs before. I've flirted. I've let men kiss me... and well... no tellings, Feodor! But at the same time, I couldn't bear it afterwards I'd want you to play the game. You think you can?"

With a sudden inarticulate sound, regardless of the fact that any one might come into the garden he caught her in his arms and held her close.

"Yes, I can play the game, Toni," he said. "I love you. And I have never said that to any one and never will—except to you. I love you and I want you, and I want nothing else and no other woman in the world. I am not a boy. I am not saying this because for the moment my feelings have carried me away, but I know now that I can trust myself because you have everything in the world that I hunger for and admire. You believe me, Toni? You're not afraid?"

"She drew her head back so that she could look at him more fully.
"No I'm not afraid. I know I can trust you. I know you will be what you say. I know now that you really love me, so to me the past doesn't matter. As long as I'm the last Feodor, that's what I want."

Tears came into his eyes suddenly, tears born out of fire. For a second she looked at him. Then suddenly she drew his head down and pressed her lips against his eyes.

"Feodor—darling, don't talk about secrets between you and me. There will be nothing for us to forgive, because we understand. I understand, Feodor, I do, I do."

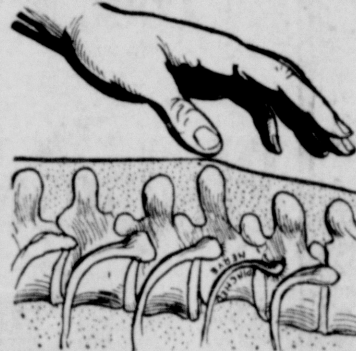

"Toni... Feodor! My dears, I'm sorry."
They started apart, and there at the little entrance to the garden stood Ronald, and with him a short, stout man, with a pointed beard and blue eyes, at the sight of whom Feodor started forward, holding out both hands.

"You! Why, I thought you were only half-way here," he cried, and Toni, laughing, came forward.

OHIO EDISON
SALEM, OHIO

greeted Ronald, and turned to the other guest.
"You're Feodor's godfather, aren't you?" she said. "I heard you were coming, but what a very awkward moment you chose to arrive at."
Maitre Siboux lifted Toni's hand and met her eyes with twinkling amusement in his own.
"It was," he agreed. "You must forgive me, Mademoiselle, but we expected to be here much later, since we had a breakdown this morning. My car behaved well afterwards, however, and we hurried. I wished to see Feodor, and to see"—he bowed to Toni—"the gracious lady he loves."

"Toni shook her fair head.
"I'm not a gracious lady," she said ruefully. "Nothing of the sort, Maitre Siboux! I'm very much modern. I'm afraid, and I think you'll be horribly disappointed. If you wanted Feodor to marry any one gracious, you should have suggested that he married my mother. She is everything that I ought to be and am not."

Feodor, who with his hand on Ronald's shoulder had been watching them with some amusement, here interposed.

"Toni has a way in these days of belittling herself," he said. "You'll learn that as you get to know her better. Have you seen Lady Alice yet?"

"She sent us out," Ronald said. "She thought you two were out here somewhere. It's a good spot, isn't it?"

The rest of the day showed Feodor that there was no need to wonder how Toni and Maitre Siboux would get on. The two had already become fast friends, and later on that evening Feodor, searching for Toni, found her curled up in a corner of the sofa, listening with deep attention to his godfather, who was holding forth on a pet hobby of his, which was none other than the study of criminology, and on which Toni, with her almost feverish interest in everything about her, now demanded information.

Siboux's hobby was not one that he usually shared with any other person, and Feodor was surprised and delighted to see the impression that Toni had made upon him, for Siboux, despite his pleasing manner and his kindly sense of humor, was not altogether an easy man with whom to make friends. He was very sufficient to himself. His charm of manner, although great, was to a certain extent a mask, since he was a criminal, and as a rule he cared not at all for young girls with whom he had nothing in common. But Feodor knew his real worth; and knew too, his heart of gold and his amazing brain, and he was far more pleased than Toni guessed by the friendship that had arisen between the two people he loved.

It was not until just before dinner that Greta met him, and then Siboux, who was talking to his hostess when she entered the room, broke off—starting in a manner that was hardly courteous—when Lady Alice introduced her older daughter, since he was a great, if impersonal, admirer of beauty, and he had been utterly unprepared for Greta's amazing loveliness.

There was no dancing that night, but bridge and music. Greta sang, and her voice had a warmth and beauty for which her apparent coldness of temperament did not prepare the listener. Every one was charmed, and presently when the music was over four or five of the guests crowded on to the terrace.

All talking, and Toni found herself next to Maitre Siboux.

He spoke of Greta's musical ability with real cordiality.

"Your sister has a very beautiful voice," he said. "What a pity she was not born into a sphere where she would have had to use it! She might have been a great artist. As it is, I suppose she never works" at which Toni laughed.

"She certainly never does work, but then I don't think I would either. If I were as beautiful as Greta, I should not want to do anything except just exist gracefully." "You, too, will live gracefully," Maitre Siboux said, smiling a little. "You must be very happy. Very content."
"I am happy," Toni said quickly. "So happy that I am frightened. I wonder what fear is."
"Fear is a very strange thing, and it's a very demoralizing one. Fear makes us do things which afterward we can neither understand nor explain. Fear is a thing to fight with all one's might and main." Siboux's voice had a ring in it. "Though it is natural to be apprehensive for one we love, yet we must conquer it all the same."

"Yes, I know," she said. "But it's difficult. I was never afraid at all before, and now I'm afraid of everything really, underneath, since I have loved Feodor. I feel that it is too good to be true. God can't make me so happy. Nobody has any right to expect it."

Siboux suddenly took her two hands in his and held them close.

"You are wrong there, mon enfant," he said gravely. "The good God made us for happiness. The misery and the disease and the sin we make for ourselves, but we must not blame Him for that. There is only one thing, He desires, and that is for us to be happy and in consequence to serve Him. Service is something we all forget when we are happy, nearly all of us. Here and there some one who is nearly a saint remembers to be grateful. That is all I have to say to you, mon enfant. If you are happy in your love for Feodor, do not forget the exception of the Reichsbank, were closed, nominally until Thursday but actually as long as officials deem advisable to restore confidence.

Exchanges Closed

Both banks and postoffices were prohibited from handling payments or transfers either in Germany or to foreign countries. Stock exchanges were ordered to suspend operations for the remainder of the week. Anyone insisting on buying foreign currencies had to pay cash over the counter. Checks were not accepted.

The government promised that arrangements would be made to facilitate the continuance of ordinary business including the meeting of mid-month payrolls of civil service employees.

The vital question remaining to be answered was how would millions of Germans—particularly the left wing radical elements—react to the President's drastic steps to halt the threatened nationwide run on the banks, started by the failure of the Danastadt and National bank.

Forced to Act

President Von Hindenburg did not take advantage of his dictatorial powers until dispatches from the provinces, especially from the Rhineland, indicated that civil authorities already had been forced by heavy runs to close municipal savings banks temporarily. Berlin was quieter, but a hundred police guarded the Central Municipal Savings bank as it paid out heavy deposits to thousands.

Riots of jobless in Essen and Duisburg against the reduction in the unemployment dole which unfortunately went into effect on the day of the Danastadt's suspension, were not reassuring. Nor was the news from Frankfurt-Au-Main that the latest attempt to show "All Quiet on the Western Front," had been marked by the hurling of a hand grenade in an empty theatre lobby.

Radio broadcasters worked overtime in urging the public to keep its nerve. There was no inclination in government circles to exaggerate the peril, yet the cabinet in a night-long meeting was concerned as much with the internal situation as with the possibility of help from abroad.

is amused when one of the little germs on this earth grain of dust discovers indications of a guiding intelligence in the universe.

What are vitamins? We know that we can't live without them, that they cure rickets in children, that foodstuffs contain the various vitamins, and scientists have just discovered that two of them, Vitamins A and B, give off some kind of strange radiation. Rats deprived of certain necessary vitamins have no children. Deprived of other vitamins, they starve to death, although supplied with abundance of food.

Three important things we possess without knowing what they are, electricity, vitamins, and the soul of man.

The United States refused to sell 250,000 bales of American cotton to Russia. American cotton growers will wonder why. We would sell cotton, as Lord Beaverbrook remarked to cannibals: Why not sell to the Bolsheviks? At least, they don't eat each other.

This week Russia is purchasing 50,000 bales of cotton in Egypt. Our British and Egyptian brothers have no objection to Bolshevik money. Are we not a little provincial, in "Good old America," or do we think we were born to tell other nations how they must run their governments, and what they must believe about the sacredness of the dollar, as opposed to the comparative unimportance of the human being.

Somebody stole 28 canary birds, as they sat in their cages singing sweetly, and, having stolen them, turned them loose in the park.

It was mistaken kindness. You might as well take 28 sons of very rich men from their yachts, automobiles or polo ponies, and turn them loose in the struggle for existence. They wouldn't thank you.

A Cook or a Wife?

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., July 14.—Police were undecided whether S. W. Truschel of near Unionport wanted a cook or a wife.

They received a call from Truschel who asked them to get him a wife between 25 and 40, who could cook for three hours at his farm.

Faces Murder Count

TIFFIN, O., July 14.—Arrested in Harrisburg, Ill., John O. Smith, 36, Fosteria, was due to arrive here today to face a murder charge arising from the slaying of his wife, Cynthia, May 23.

TO-DAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

Elaborate plans are being made for broadcasting a description of the test of a U. S. navy diving bell designed for submarine rescue work, late Thursday afternoon.

The test will be made in 75 feet of water off the coast of New London, Conn., with navy officers in charge. Three announcers will be used by WEAF-NBC, with James Wallington in the diving bell, John S. Young on the deck of the submarine tender Falcon and Ezra Macintosh in a submarine. Short waves will be linked from sea to shore.

Because Rudy Vallee was called to the bedside of his mother at Westbrook, Me., yesterday, his Tuesday night dance broadcast on WEAF-NBC has been cancelled. The pilgrims, who present ballads and madrigals, celebrate their second radio anniversary with a special program on WJZ-NBC next Sunday night. Olive Marshall, soprano, will be soloist with the Goldman band on WEAF-NBC, Sunday evening. Starting Wednesday night on WJZ-NBC a weekly series of beauty discussions will be given by Ellen Mayfield, with music by a string quartet directed by Larry Funk.

Dad Pickard and the family, dispensers of Hill Billy music, soon will be back on the air after a vacation. The first of their renewed weekly programs is set for WJZ-NBC at 7:30 p. m., July 23.

Wednesday Features
Atlantic City music via WPG-WABC-CBS, at 12:30 p. m.
Refrain revue by Jules Herbweaux orchestra, Chicago, 1:30, WJZ-NBC.

Ballads by Chauncey Parsons, tenor at 3:15 and song recital by Mabel Wayne, at 3:30, WJZ-NBC.
Camp concert, Emery Deutsch's orchestra, WABC-CBS, 3:30.

First of a series of Boy Scout programs, WEAF-NBC, 3:45.

Program by Lee Morse, crooner, WEAF-NBC, 6:30.

Goldman band, WJZ-NBC, 8:30.
The New Wits on WABC-CBS, at 9:30.

Will Osborne's Orchestra, WABC-CBS, 10:30.

MARKETS

MARKET MOVES ARE UNCERTAIN

Flutter Erratically As German Situation Remains Muddled

NEW YORK, July 14.—The stock market fluttered uncertainly during the early trading today, as the German financial situation remained unclear.

The announcement made by the Bank For International Settlements that it proposed to renew its participation in the $100,000,000 credit due Thursday, and that it would collaborate in giving further aid to the Reich, was regarded as mildly reassuring.

Foreign exchanges were still unsettled. Trading in the German mark was at a standstill, but it was nominally quoted at various levels somewhat above yesterday's level of 22 cents. The German bonds also showed a better tone. While the Dawes plan issue eased further, the Young plan issue rallied a little.

Stocks drifted without a sense of direction in dull trading. The opening was decidedly mixed. An irregularly upward tendency soon appeared, only to disappear by the end of the first half hour. U. S. Steel pushed up 1/4 of a point, then fell back to show a loss of a small fraction.

American telephone lost 1/4 of a point at the opening, but pushed upward as traders had time to digest its earnings statement, showing $4.8 a share earned for the first half, or 39 cents more than dividend requirements.

Canton Arranges Night Track Carnival For Week Of July 27

THE DAY In Sports

SLUGGER'S REIGN ENDS
FUTURE OF BOXING???

Every now and then someone rises to bemoan the passing of the old no-limit, bouts when, chased by police to barns or across the border, two husky sluggers would stand and batter each other until one or both collapsed. Claims are made boxing has become too scientific, that the fight game is becoming "sanitized" and that it holds few attractions for the fan.

The old fights may have been inspiring from some standpoints. Certainly, the quaint custom of "winner-take-all," now obsolete—Jack Dempsey's show at Reno on July 4th had a 60-40 clause in it and added in making Paulino and Max Baer fight—had its good points. But the day of the slugger is over. The clever, defensive battler can hold the most ferocious brawler at a safe distance for 10 rounds, or even 15, and the ring champion of the future will have to know more about brain than he will about beef and brawn. He must know how to box.

A glance down the list of present champions, not at all impressive, illustrates how the clever battler already predominates. But it also shows that the champion of today is not what it was five years ago.

Overcommercialization, concentration of control over fighters whose interests should be competitive to preserve even the semblance of the sporting instinct, disreputable hangers on, the activities of gamblers have combined to bring boxing in the United States where the most ardent devotee of the once mainly art is compelled to pessimism. It brings one to wonder and ponder over the question, "What is to become of boxing?"

The second of the 11s listed above is the worst because it is without precedent in sport's history. The practice of having boxers under a long-term contract, forcing them to exhibit talents in only one arena and against only opponents he appears to be better than, is a detriment to the game. There are now two, perhaps three, groups competing for boxing dominance and each is endeavoring to set up a manarism. Fight no longer appears in battles wherever they can, they do not fight whenever an opponent appears. They fight when and where they are told. And often they fight only how they are told.

AT CLEVELAND where the July 3 Stribling-Schmeling fight was held, there was much talk concerning the ring's future. Fistic managers were pessimistic, more so than ever before. They bemoaned the lack of good fighters and good boxers, they criticized everybody and everybody criticized them. And neither one or the other had a remedy for the situation.

There was some talk that Mr. James Joseph Tunney or William Harrison Dempsey might now be persuaded to return into fistic endeavor but neither, it appears, has any such intentions. Mr. Tunney, a gentleman always, refuses to affiliate himself with modern fighting and Dempsey, at home in any kind of environment, is not the Dempsey he was and knows it. Managers and promoters, incidentally, are looking for a second edition of either battle as one of the means to the end in saving boxing for our posterity.

Some cynicism still flourishes over the literary propensities of Mr. Tunney. Like all other devices which are designed to stimulate artificial excitement and make the public pay $40 for $4 entertainment, the advertisement of Gene's devotion to classics has been overdone. This engaging and able ex-marine may have sighed whenever he had to lay his Shakespeare down for a minute and then again he may not.

BUT, WHETHER THE retired champion of the world is a bookworm, or not, he is a clean, likeable, decent chap and a good exhibit to the credit of a sport as any profession would desire, especially one that needs rehabilitation as badly as does the fight racket.

Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia lacks the press-agency of Mr. Tunney but he is much the same type of man. Without seeming to make this discussion a brochure on behalf of the Watch and Ward society—it is pertinent to record that Loughran neither drinks nor smokes. Furthermore, his closest friend, one who has known him as intimately 15 years, says he never has heard him cuss.

Loughran does not come from a prominent family. He lived on a quiet street in Philadelphia when he began to make money in the ring. He still lives there and if he is sitting on the porch after 10 at night his mother invariably reminds him that it's time to go to bed. He saves his money, as Tunney did, and yet, he has no big fortune accumulated. He has, for some reason or other, never been popular with the men who arrange matches. He was virtually in exile from New York for five years because of this mysterious reason.

(Additional dope on the fistic game, on Loughran and other fight figures will be supplemented to this article in Tuesday's News.)

DISTRICT'S STAR ATHLETES WILL CLASH IN MEET

Salem Thineclads Entered In Major Events; Allen May Pole Vault

WAGONHAUSER TO FACE H. WALKER

Allen Rudy Plans to Race In Half Mile; Smith In Weight Contests

Schoolboy star athletes of past and present will gather for competition in the first track and field carnival of its kind ever held in Northeastern Ohio. A night athletic meet for a five-day period starting Monday, July 27 at the Stark county fairgrounds, Canton.

Sponsored by the Canton Kiwanis club, the meet is planned to bring together the greatest athletes developed in district schools in the past seven years. Entries have already been received from former McKinley High stars, Akron East, Akron Garfield, Alliance and other schools within a radius of 30 miles from Canton. Ward Young, McKinley coach in charge of arrangements for the carnival, said today.

Plan Tug-of-War Tourney

The track and field contests will be combined with a special tug-of-war championship tournament which is planned by Young as one of the feature attractions of the five-day program. The event is open to all Northern Ohio organizations, a field of 50 being anticipated. Interested parties in Salem may compete.

Here is the program outlined by Young for the five days:

Monday—100-yd dash, furlong runs and 440-yd race.

Tuesday—High hurdles and pole vault.

Wednesday—Mile run, half-mile run, sprint relay.

Thursday—Shot put, discus, javelin.

Friday—Half mile and mile relays.

Young was in Salem discussing the carnival with athletes here last week and obtained tentative entries of more than ten Quaker City stars. Among those planning to compete are Harold Walker, Clarence Walker, William Smith, Bruce Arnold, Henry Reese, Wilford Brantingham, Wayne Russell, Ed Raymond, Russell Thompson, Lowell Allen, Keith Rossier, Harold Hartsman, Erwin Beck, Keith Harris and Ed Beck.

Allen and Rossier, Salem's famous pole vault "twins," will compete in that event against Don Hummel, former McKinley star, Ed Beck, and other noted vaulters of the district. Smith, state champion in discus-heaver, will enter the plate-throw and the shot put.

Main interest of Salem track bugs will be centered on the mile run where, if Young's plans materialize, Harold Walker and Brantingham will be presented in their first clash this year with Kenneth Wagonhauser, miler-extraordinary of Leetonia. Leetonia's star, winner of second place in the national interscholastic meet at Chicago, is rated as one of the country's greatest distance-runners, his meeting with Walker and Brantingham being planned for settlement of wide-spread disputes concerning which of three racers is the best.

Entry lists for track events and the tug-of-war will close Monday, July 20. They should be filed at or mailed to Kiwanis headquarters, Courtland hotel, Canton. There is no entry fee. The carnival is staged for benefit of Canton's underprivileged children's camp, maintained by Kiwanians near North Industry.

Salem Golf Stars Second at Warren

Donald McLeay, Salem Golf club pro, and Ralph Knepper, the city's leading amateur, placed second in the weekly P. G. A. golf tournament, held Monday at Warren.

The McLeay-Knepper combination, which won last week's P. G. A., scored a 69, one stroke back of the 68 registered by Billy Alcroft and Howard Davillius of Youngstown.

Next Monday a pro-lady tourney will be held at Youngstown. McLeay will compete with one of the city's women golfers.

LEGION TOSSERS LOSE 8-1 TUSSLE

Salem Team Gets Only 5 Hits Off Leetonia Hurler Monday

Limited to five hits by Caline, youthful Leetonia slabster, Salem's American Legion tossers dropped an 8-1 verdict to the opposing team at Leetonia Monday afternoon.

Catlas, hurling for Salem, was touched for only six hits but three inopportune errors were factors in scoring runs for the victors. Altogether he threw safely three times as did P. Stratton of Salem.

FOREMEN'S CLUB DRUBS POTTERY; BILLIARDS WIN

Fans Look to Colonials To Take League Toga From Mullins

With the Salem Hardware team far down in the standings without a victory in two starts, midget fans here are looking to the Colonial Billiards as the team to wrest titular laurels from the Mullins Foremen's club during the second half of city league play.

The Billiards looked strong in both games played this half, rolling up 25 runs and 26 hits in the battles and yesterday trounced the new Harold Cox Studios, 12-4, in another one-sided fracas. The victory gave the Billiards an even share with Mullins for first place in the league, the body-makers ringing up a resounding 12-3 triumph over the Salem China company Monday.

Two hits were all that the Pottery could garner off the delivery of Jimmie Fitzpatrick whose teammates hopped on Harry Vincent for seven runs in the first frame.

George McFeely pitched fine ball against the Studios and should have had a shutout. Each of four runs scored by the Coxmen came on errors by the Billiards. Fielding of Harold Cox and hitting by Bishop featured.

THE GUMPS—AIN'T LOVE GRAND

BRINGING UP FATHER

POLLY AND HER PALS

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeannette Young Norton

Two-Piece Menus for Hot Nights

For those warm evenings when appetite and energy are low, a two-course dinner may be a happy solution. If the foods are carefully chosen, a two-course dinner can be as nourishing as a six-course affair, but in warm weather the quantity might well be cut. A small quantity of concentrated proteins, like eggs, cheese or nuts are more appealing than the bulky foods.

The two-course dinner consists of one protein, and one vegetable or fruit salad, plus bread and butter, or crackers. Toast is more attractive than plain bread, and improves the flavor of salad.

A combination like omelet and a salad of raw vegetables is a complete meal. Or if there's a large salad as the main course—perhaps potato salad combined with celery, cucumbers, tomatoes and lettuce—then the dessert might be a baked custard.

A Satisfactory Meal

Jellied consommé served with sandwiches of minced chicken, tongue, or assorted cheeses is a satisfactory meal for those who prefer to dine lightly in warm weather. Creamy frozen desserts, if should be remembered, are really a food, if they are well made with sweet cream, eggs, milk or gelatin. If it's a big night for desserts, then the preceding part of the meal may well be something light—a little minced chicken on toast, or a mixed vegetable salad.

Don't overlook the flavor and food value of sour cream as a dressing for vegetable salads. At its best, sour cream is as thick as mayonnaise, and it needs nothing but a dash of salt to be a perfect dressing. It's particularly acceptable to those who like a tart dressing with their salad but can't take vinegar—or those who can't like oil. Sour cream has the smoothness of oil, and the tartness of lemon, all in its own natural state.

Fields To Battle Davies In Outdoor Ring Show Tonight

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 14 — Willie Davies, veteran Charleci flyweight, runs up against one of the best youngsters in the division in the 10-round main bout of the Foutts bowl program here tonight.

He battles Ross Fields of Jimmy Dunn's Cleveland stable. Fields has captured his last 14 fistic engagements against some keen competition and will furnish the Pennsylvania an entertaining evening.

Four other scraps including a six-round semi-final will be offered in addition to the Davies-Fields go.

Four Women Injured

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 14.—Four Mansfield, O. women Mrs. Charles Brown, 56, Mrs. B. L. Dahmmer, 57, Mrs. Maude Woltham, 48, and Mrs. George A. Mead, 57, are in a Lackawanna hospital.

Their car went into a ditch last night. The latter two were less seriously injured and none was critical.

Veto Stadium Plan

COLUMBUS, O., July 14.—Plans to erect a $350,000 baseball stadium at Sunshine park were abandoned when city council refused to pass legislation calling for bids.

The project was voted down, 4 to 3, five votes being necessary for action.

MOVIES

TODAY'S FEATURES

At The State

"Always Goodbye" the feature starring Elissa Landi completes its run at the State theater today. A story of an American girl who goes to London with the idea of being able to say good-bye to every man she meets. Then she met the man who could not be forgotten with the usual "Always Goodbye." Lewis Stone plays opposite Landi.

"FIFTY MILLION FRENCHMEN"

At The Grand

"Fifty Million Frenchmen" with Olsen and Johnson as the freak "sleuths," parts they played in the original stage production is at the Grand for the last times today. Claudia Dell, William Oaston, and John Halliday play other leading roles in this all-natural color picture of gay Paris.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

At The State

"Indiscreet," starring Gloria Swanson, comes Wednesday to the State theater.

Is it worth while for an elder sister to risk the destruction of her own romance in order to frustrate a discarded lover's attempt to win her younger sister?

This is the situation in which Gloria Swanson, as the very modern Jerry Trent, finds herself. And the solution of the problem gives rise to a series of complications which serve to make this new offering one of the fastest moving of comedy-dramas.

Miss Swanson's leading man is Ben Lyon. He appears as a novelist. Ten Blake, whose love for Jerry Trent undergoes more than an acid test, once she decides to guide her sister's destiny.

Monroe Owsley is the former lover and Barbara Kent is the younger sister. Other members of the cast are Arthur Lake and Maude Eburne.

"UP POPS THE DEVIL"

At The Grand

Carole Lombard, Norman Foster, Stuart Irwin, Lilyan Tashman, Skeets Gallagher and Joyce Compton, compose the excellent cast of "Up Pops the Devil" feature picture tomorrow at the Grand.

The story concerns the marital difficulties of Norman Foster and Carole Lombard, as the young writer and his ex-dancer wife.

They live in an apartment in the quaint and very sophisticated section of New York City where young people of many professions gather for refreshment and amusement. Foster and his wife agree that they will "never get anywhere" if they continue this happy-go-lucky existence, and so they plan a re-naisance.

But the scheme hits a bump when a sugary-voiced Southern girl comes into the picture from the apartment upstairs. Amusing and near-tragic events result—but the domestic scene rights itself in the pleasing finish.

So much more for your money
The quality you insist on—
at a very low price ★

The first time you drive a Pontiac you're due for a genuine surprise—especially if you have based your ideas on small cars costing just a little less. You'll find the whole "feel" of Pontiac different—it gives you a totally different kind of ride.

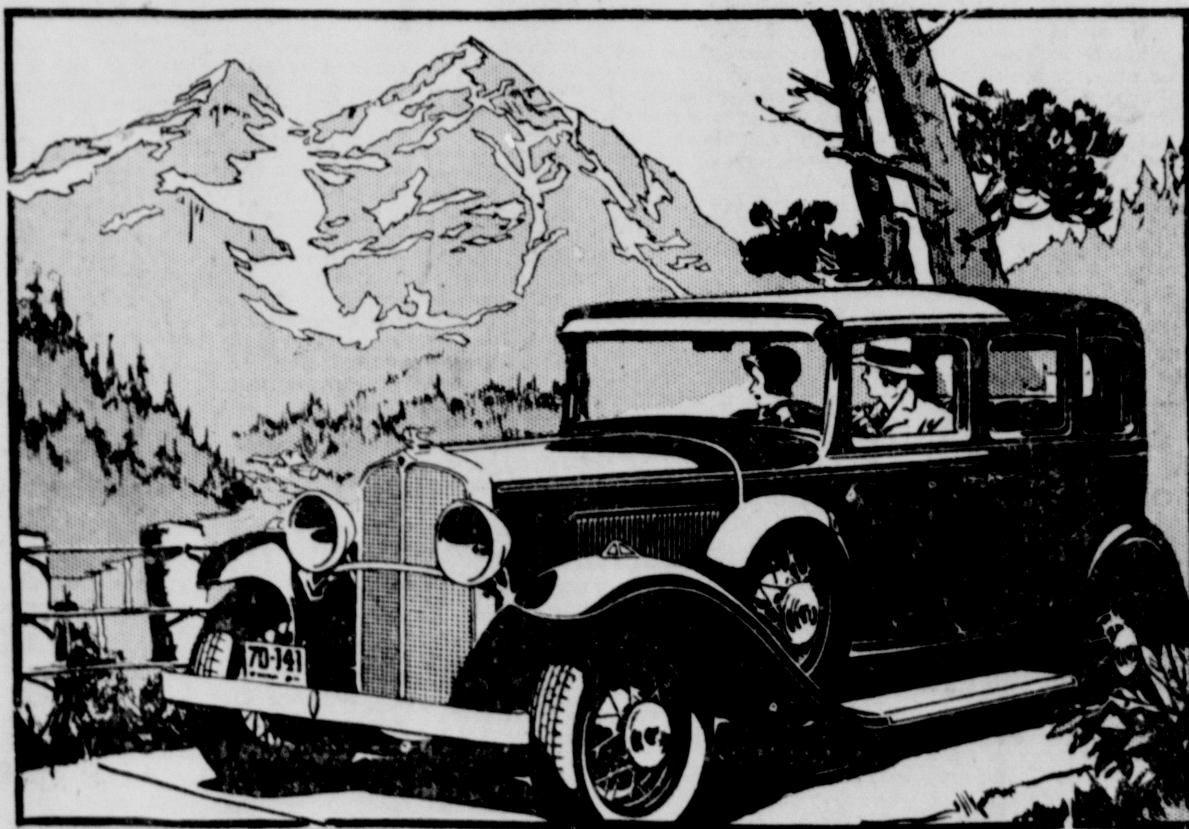

First is the feeling of power. You'll note pick-up, speed and a driving ease you never looked for at so low a price. If you like to get where you are going without being boxed in traffic or shifting too much on hills, you'll call Pontiac a performer after your own heart.

Then there's comfort—deep seats, flexible springs, four hydraulic shock absorbers and enough weight and length. And, even if you know little about mechanics, you'll readily see how rubber cushions at 43 points in Pontiac's chassis take up road shocks.

On sizzling summer days, and in wet weather, you'll marvel at how well Pontiac's insulated Fisher body shuts out heat and dampness. And when you run a critical eye over the interior fittings and finish, you'll see why Pontiac owners are so glad to have their friends ride with them . . . genuine mohair or whipcord upholstery, for one thing! (Fine leather in open models.)

The graceful body lines, the broad one-piece fenders with neat built-in fender lamps, the deep V-radiator with its chrome screen—these and many other fine-car features will help make you proud to own a Pontiac . . . an outstanding General Motors value. You'll like the very low price, too—for what a satisfaction it is to get so much more for your money!

Any Oakland-Pontiac dealer will arrange a demonstration at your convenience.
